Arkansas' Woman Senator Finds She Has Interesting Job

Mrs. Caraway Has No Desire to Become Women's Champion

SENATE INTERESTING

Spends Much Time in Washington Office Over Her Work

By ROBERT TALLEY
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON.—A woman's job in the senate isn't to represent the women and children of the United States or to attempt any special missions, for there are none that a man cannot perform just as well.

Her first weeks as a senator from Arkansas has convinced Mrs. Hattie Caraway, only active woman senator in the nation's history, of this. She has had only one predecessor, the aged Mrs. Rebecca Latimer Fenton, of Georgia, to whom a chivalrous southern governor gave a special one-day complimentary appointment back in 1922.

"People often ask me," says Mrs. Caraway, "if I'm not planning to become especially active for measures and appropriations in behalf of women and children. Well, I'm not; there's no need to."

"The men in the Senate are just as much interested in such welfare matters as a woman would be. And why not? They are fathers just like mothers are. I know in my own case, my husband worried just as much about our three boys as I did. It is likely, of course, that a woman may be better informed on such matters, but I am sure the men have the interest of women and children as much at heart."

Mrs. Caraway, seated at her desk in her private office under a huge framed picture of Woodrow Wilson, expounded some more of her unusual philosophy.

Q. Why is it you have never made a speech in the Senate?

A. Because there is a lot of talking done there now, and I don't think need any more. I'm not saying I'll never make a speech.

Q. Have you ever made a speech before women's clubs, at political rallies or the like?

A. I never made a speech in my life. But I've done an awful lot of listening.

Q. What do you think is the duty of a woman in the Senate?

A. To do just as a man would do; to represent the whole people of her state and not any particular group.

Q. How does it feel to be a member of the Senate?

A. Not very much different than I have felt for the past 20 years; you see, I was here with Mr. Caraway throughout his 20 years in the Senate and the House.

Q. Do you plan to work for any of your husband's pet measures—such as his anti-lobby bill, etc.?

A. No, I will leave those matters to men who are better informed about them than I am.

Moderate and unassuming, Mrs. Caraway has sought to efface herself ever since she came here for her first sessions in December, following her appointment by Governor Parnell under the death of her husband last fall. Apparently the tragic circumstances under which she inherited the office—Senator Caraway's death was sudden—have caused her to prefer the background.

Day after day she has sat at her little flat-topped desk in the Senate chamber—neighbors to such prominent figures on the Democratic side as J. Ham Lewis of Illinois and Joe Robinson of Arkansas—and has as yet never uttered a word except for votes. Usually she is seen writing on a note pad.

Mrs. Caraway's first vote was cast in the election for president pro tempore of the Senate, in which she voted for Senator Key Pittman of Nevada, as against Senator George H. Moses, Republican choice.

The only major measure on which she has had a chance to vote thus far was the Hoover moratorium. She voted against it.

Mrs. Caraway lives in her Maryland home on the outskirts of Washington with two of her three sons. They are: Paul, 26, who was graduated from West Point in 1929 and is now stationed in Washington and studying law at Georgetown University; and Bobbie, 16, a senior in a local high school. She frequently gets to see her other son, Forrest, 22, also a West Point graduate, as he is stationed at Fort Washington, Md., which is close by.

Her day begins at 8 o'clock, when she leaves home with Paul and Bobbie and drops them off at school on her way to the capitol. She spends an hour or so in her office, attends Senate committee meetings—she is a member of three committees—and then, when the Senate convenes at noon, goes to the floor. She remains there

Roosevelt to Get North Dakota Vote

Little Opposition to New York Governor Seen by Democrats

VALLEY CITY, N. D., (AP)—North Dakota Democrats came here Wednesday for a convention with leaders asserting that Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York would receive their presidential endorsement with little if any opposition.

The party's State Central Committee, which met prior to the convention, was told by H. H. Perry of Ellendale, chairman, that delegations from 27 reporting counties were for Roosevelt. The state has 53 counties.

The convention will endorse, a candidate for the presidency, name national convention delegates, and elect national committee representatives. Selection of a state ticket has been deferred until a later meeting.

Perry said that he and other state Democratic leaders are confident Roosevelt can carry North Dakota as well as the nation. If Roosevelt is endorsed Thursday his name may go on the March 15 presidential primary ballot.

Fred McLean of Grand Forks, who represented J. Nelson Kelly, national committee member at Washington meetings recently, similarly was optimistic concerning the outlook for Roosevelt.

"Party leaders in North Dakota made no campaign or suggestions previous to the county conventions," he said. "But the endorsement of Roosevelt by the county conventions in the state seems universal."

The secretary of state at Bismarck Wednesday set February 13 as the final day candidates may file for the primary.

Hope School Suit For Debt Balance Is Filed Thursday

Friendly Action Begun by Bar Association to Determine Law

$17,200 IS AT STAKE

Suit Must Be Won to Allow Schools to Finish the Year

Hope School District's test suit, the outcome of which will determine whether the city schools are to run through the balance of the school year or suspend at the close of the first semester January 30, was filed in Hempstead chancery court at Washington Thursday afternoon.

The suit, which is entirely friendly, was filed by a committee of the Hempstead County Bar association, as taxpayers, with O. A. Graves defending the school district.

The bar association is seeking to enjoin the school district from increasing its floating indebtedness beyond $63,000, the estimated annual revenue of the district. Current floating indebtedness is $55,000, which, with $8,000 reserved for payment on the bonded debt, already puts the floating debt at the maximum figure.

It is the contention of the school authorities, Mr. Graves said in a public address last week, that the school reorganization law adopted by the legislature last year allows the district to increase its floating debt up to the maximum figure of such debt at the time of the passage of the act. Hope's floating debt at that time was $50,200.

As the debt has since been reduced to $55,000, the district hopes to obtain court permission to expend for the additional $25,200, less $8,000 for bond retirement, net expansion of $17,200, which it is believed would see the schools through the current year—the facilities having already volunteered to accept half-pay during the spring semester.

By special agreement the case is to be advanced on the docket, so that a decision by the supreme court may be had possibly this month.

State to Discuss Cotton Acreage Cut

Matter to Be Taken Up at the South Arkansas C. of C. Meets

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—Dr. W. H. Toland of Nashville, Howard county representative who sponsored the state agricultural credit bill in the last legislature, said here Wednesday questions involving the application of the Arkansas cotton acreage control act would be discussed at the South Arkansas Chamber of Commerce meeting at Arkadelphia, Friday.

The Arkansas act does not become operative to restrict cotton acreage until states which last year had three-fourths of the total cotton acreage of the county enact similar measures.

Dr. Toland said the proposal of asking the federal government to urge acreage reduction probably will be put before the chamber, as organizations in other states have contemplated similar action.

Boy Found Dead, Drowning Victim

Disappearance Had Caused Excitement in Searcy County Community

LESLIE.—Disappearance of 16-year-old Arlie Collins of the Chinese community, was cleared up Monday with the discovery of the body in a small branch about a half-mile from his home. The lad was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Collins, who lives about 20 miles southwest of Leslie.

Young Collins left home last Wednesday, with Dewey Gillum and his son, Thomas, to visit a neighbor about one and a half miles distant. When the youth failed to return home, feeling against the elder Gillum ran high, as he had admitted having left the boy in a drunken condition after they had left the neighbor's home. Young Collins had $9.35, and this was ascribed as a motive for possible robbery.

However, the money was found in the pockets after the body had been recovered.

Several hundred persons joined in the search for the boy. The body was found in the small branch into which he apparently had fallen backward. His feet were at the edge of the water. A coroner's jury found that the boy had come to his death from exposure. No marks of violence were found on the body.

Robinson Blocks Contest On Bailey

Elections Committee Instructed to Determine Basis for Hearing

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—The Senate Wednesday instructed its Elections Committee to determine whether there is sufficient basis for hearing the contest against the election of Senator Robinson, Democrat, North Carolina.

This unusual procedure was demanded by Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, who said there is "no fair or substantial basis for the contest."

The Senate agreed by unanimous consent to Robinson's proposal to refer to the committee the resolution introduced by Chairman Shortridge to authorize hearing the contest brought against Bailey's election by former Representative George M. Pritchard, his defeated Republican opponent.

Shortridge temporarily objected to the request, but withdrew his objection after several senators, including Borah, Republican, Idaho, had supported Robinson.

Robinson contended there were "some unusual features of this contest" and "no sound justification for it."

"I do not believe we ought to initiate proceedings of this nature," he said, "until a prima facie case has been made for the necessity of hearing it."

The Democratic leader pointed out it would cost about $100,000 to hear the contest. He denied he was moved by "partisan motives" for making his suggestion.

Shortridge at first contended it was necessary to pass the resolution to give his committee authority to make even a preliminary investigation.

Robinson replied there was "not an excuse in the world" for refusing to allow the committee to determine whether it wishes to hear the contest.

It was told Thursday that the State Department had granted the oil concession was granted by the South American Petroleum Company in which Mellon owned the Gulf Oil Company and was largely interested.

Witnesses Deny Heflin's Charges

Former Governor Brandon of Alabama Says Election Was Fair

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., (AP)—Former Governor William W. Brandon Wednesday joined two score witnesses in denying former Senator J. Thomas Heflin's charges of fraud and corruption in the 1930 general election in Alabama.

Appearing as a rebuttal witness for Senator John H. Bankhead at hearings conducted by a commissioner of the Senate Election Subcommittee in connection with Heflin's contest, Brandon declared the election one of the fairest ever held in the state.

Brandon, now probate judge of Tuscaloosa county, denied that absentee ballots were issued from his office in violation of the law and said requests by Heflin's supporters for representation at polling places were granted.

Other witnesses from Walker, Shelby and Tuscaloosa counties denied charges of irregularities made last week by witnesses for Heflin.

Frank Miller, Tuscaloosa county, charged last week with offering to "make it worth while" for W. R. Boone to vote the Democratic ticket, said the charge was untrue.

Knox Woolley, Shelby county sheriff, admitted he put up the money to pay W. H. Page to obtain absentee ballots, but he was unaware of violating the law. Page said he received $150 for his services.

Woolley denied he promised a Mrs. Mary Davis to withdraw a charge of violating the prohibition law against her son if she would swing her support to the Democratic nominee.

Harve Davidson, Walker county deputy sheriff, said he was known among independents as the "pistol man" but denied he had "bulldozed" or threatened coal miners for supporting Heflin.

Muscle Shoals Talked by Hoover and Snell

WASHINGTON.—(P)—The possibilities of accelerated action in the house upon a measure to place Muscle Shoals in operation were discussed Wednesday at an early morning conference between President Hoover and Minority Leader Snell.

"We are anxious," Snell said as he left the White House, "to get a good clean leasing bill into the congressional machinery. It is time we got something out."

The New York republican reported the president in favor of house action to get Muscle Shoals in operation. He did not say, however, whether the president would recommend action on the huge Tennessee river project along the same lines as suggested in the recent report of a joint federal state commission.

AT THE THEATER

Paul Lukas is one foreign actor who was not shunted into obscurity by the advent of the talking picture. And this in spite of the fact that three years ago he could speak only one word of English—and that word was "steak."

Indeed, talking pictures have brought him the greatest success in his career, and have been the means of elevating him to the status of an independent star. The handicap of language was not sufficient to do more than effect a temporary halt in a swift upward rise which began in the era of silent pictures.

No role that Lukas has ever had, however, has done so much for him as the role of Count Gus in "Strictly Dishonorable." It is by general consent the prize role of the year. The Paramount Company tried to buy "Strictly Dishonorable" for Paul Lukas' use, and when Universal wouldn't give it up, a compromise was effected whereby Universal borrowed Lukas to play the role in its production of "Strictly Dishonorable" in association with Sidney Fox as the Southern girl and Lewis Stone as the judge. Every one is satisfied that the role of Count Gus couldn't be in better hands. Immediately after the assignment of the role, Paramount announced Paul Lukas as an independent star, instead of a feature player.

"When the entire motion picture industry fell headlong into the production of talking pictures," said Lukas recently, "I realize at once that only heroic measures could prevent the immediate ending of my American screen career. Many European players, their contracts cancelled, were already making preparations to return to their native lands. Under the conditions, I could expect nothing that I must go with them."

"I had but recently come from Hungary, and my command of English was almost a minus quantity. In fact, when I crossed the Atlantic on my way to America and Hollywood, I had beefsteak for every meal, because that was the only English word that I could say. For seven months I kept away from the studios and all this time I was diligently at work mastering the English language. Realizing that merely taking a daily lesson would be too slow a process, I engaged a young college graduate who accompanied me everywhere I went. Since we were together all day, and he spoke nothing but English, it was not long before I was able to carry on a simple conversation in English."

"At the end of seven months I went back to the studio—an English speaking actor. To be sure, I spoke with a slight accent, and will probably do so to the end of my days, but that has not proved a very serious handicap. Possibly it has been a help, though I am not sure of that. At least, I escaped oblivion."

For many years a stage actor in Budapest, capital of Hungary, Lukas later appeared on the stage in Vienna and Berlin, and in the later city made his screen debut as Samson in the UFA production, "Samson and Delilah." Eventually he was brought to America under contract, and achieved instant success in silent pictures—but the talkies brought him to the height of his career.

Lukas' last appearance before stardom claims him is in a featured role of "Strictly Dishonorable." Universal's sophisticated comedy which starts Sunday at the Sanger.

GAINESVILLE, Fla.—(P)—If the Florida Gators have a good or bad season at basketball, astrologers will probably rise up and say it was because of the stars.

For four of the boys on the varsity squad were born in December.

Earl Hirsch was 22 years old December 1. Drennon Brown reached 21 December 5; K. D. Colson, Jr., celebrated his 25th birthday December 13 and on December 15 Bill Bradley became 20. All are forwards except Colson, who plays center.

Here are the plain facts, folks, about this Great January Clearance Sale. Retarded Winter buying has left us with entirely too much goods on hand, and it is our iron-clad policy to not carry over-seasonable merchandise from one season to another. This opportunity is like a guardian angel hovering over you in time of distress. Your money will go further than it has ever known to go before. You, perhaps, have wondered just how you were going to arrange to buy the things you really need. And how you were going to pull the purse strings to make them stretch from one side of the family to the other. The question has been answered by our Great January Clearance Sale, and there is no need to worry because Mother, Father, Sister and Brother can all be taken care of at a price even less than it usually takes to buy for a few members of the family. But, remember, the best bargains always go first; so be here early.

Record of the Second Day's Proceedings In Hempstead Court, 181

Four Cases Occupy Roster for Second Day of Hempstead County Court. Convened at the House of John English, Near Blevins, 1819

As we published the proceedings of the first day of the trial in Hempstead county, we did not read this first trial. It is mentioned that the trial was held in Hempstead county, the territory of Missouri, was the case of John English, which was to have stood somewhere on the line between Washington and the exact location. Unfortunately, the trial was taken from the record now in the court in Washington. The trial was taken from the same place as was the other.

Proceedings for the second day, 1819, follow:

THURSDAY MORNING, JUNE 23, 1819.

Court met pursuant to adjournment, at 10 o'clock.

Grand jury being called, Brazzel failed to attend, but it appeared that he, the said Brazzel, is sick and unable to attend, he is therefore excused.

Notice of Henry Cassidy it is ordered by the court that a commission be issued to any judge of any court in the state of Missouri, or of the territory of Washington, territory of Missouri, to take and certify the testimony of witnesses to the last trial of the case of Robert Dumm, and that the same may be taken to the court as according to the order of the court.

It is further ordered by the court that William Simms be appointed to collect and preserve the estate of the deceased until a probate is granted, he giving bond for the faithful discharge of his duties according to law, and the said William Simms now here in open court, and to the court and security of the court, himself, the sum of $1500.00, and William Ashbrook, the sum of $750.00.

On motion of Henry Cassidy that the court take into consideration the estate of George Jones, a poor person, and it appearing to the court that the said George Jones comes under the description of persons provided for by the statute in such cases, the court orders that the treasurer of the county pay out of any money in his hands not otherwise appropriated the sum of $18 per month until his disability shall cease, to be drawn monthly, and the clerk make out a certificate of this order and deliver to the said Jones or to any other person properly authorized by him who shall be his authority for receiving the same and receipting therefor.

Sam C. Roane presented to the court the account of Asa Blankenship for conveying William Findley, a person charged with murder, from Pecan Point, to the house of John English, $10.00; Boarding said person, $3.00; Guarding said person, $2.00, amounting to the sum of $15.00, which is allowed by this court, and ordered that the same be paid out of the treasury of this county, out of any money not otherwise appropriated. It is ordered that the clerk make out a certificate of this order and deliver to the said Blankenship, which shall be his voucher for receiving and receipting for the same.

The grand jury came into court with an indictment against James Hill for an assault and battery on the body of John Flannigan, found a true bill, and the motion of Sam C. Roane, prosecuting attorney ordering that a writ be issued on this indictment, returnable at the next term of court.

United States vs. John Lick, larceny, found a true bill. Same order as last above.

United States vs. Henry Lick, recognisance.

Henry Lick came into open court and acknowledged himself indebted to the United States in the sum of $100.00, to be paid of his goods, chattels, lands and tenements, with the condition that he be and appear at our next court of common pleas to be held on the fourth Monday in December next, at the house of John English, in the county of Hempstead, there, and there to testify in behalf of the United States in a certain prosecution:

United States vs. John Lick, and not depart the court without leave thereof. Then the recognisance to be void, otherwise to run on full force and virtue.

Onto another or out into space and would that we had some way of conducting our highway traffic and avoid this horrible destruction that we witness every day. But little will be done and the slaughter will continue all the year and the sight of bleeding and mangled human bodies will be a common sight, and all this too in "Great America."

We often hear of a young man having the "big head," and he is the object of ridicule but the "big head" is worse than the big head and many of our young people, and old ones too, are affected with it. The big head is the highway traveled by the deadly alcohol, and damages and finally destroys the vitality of the human body. Happiness, property, business and health go down the big throat and the well-to-do become poor and the poor become poorer. I know a physician once who was considered one of the best in his country and accumulated wealth rapidly and built up a large practice and erected a fine dwelling house, a cotton gin, a thriving store and bought hundreds of acres of fertile lands. But he took to strong drink and it was not long before he was drinking cheap Arkansas White Mule. Down his throat went his practice, then his cotton gin and then the store and then the large farm and then all of his money and then disease preyed upon him and death claimed him, wrecked and broken. We all chipped in and bought a coffin for him, at death, as he did not leave enough to get this last necessity for himself. The name of this man is "Legion" and he has a large and suffering following.

Why do we say a man was as "drunk as a fool" and not say he was as drunk as a wise man or a preacher? The brain, the battery through which the mind or soul operates, has the most delicate lining in the wonderful human body called the pia mater and it is very easy to harm or destroy this lining. When a person drinks liquor the alcohol goes to the vitals of his body and reaches this pia mater and injures it and finally destroys it and the brain cannot properly function and the mind is hindered from free action and so the victim is drunk as a fool because of this injury. We need

Local Pastor Says the Church Is Safe

Says Greatest Danger to Church Lies Within and Not Without

"SPARKS FROM MY ANVIL."

By J. C. Williams, Washington, Ark.

The church has but little to dread from outside opposition. For centuries, infidels and atheists have been assaulting the walls of Zion but have failed to batter them down. The efforts of Clarence Darrow, the avowed atheist, to demolish the church and the Bible are futile. But the great danger is from the indifferent and unbelieving members and half infidel preachers within the church. The old case of the conquest of Troy by the Greeks is being re-enacted—the Greeks could not take the city by outside attack and so made a feint withdrawal; but left a wooden horse as a gift to the Trojans. But the horse was filled with Greek soldiers and when the unsuspecting Trojans drew within the walls, the Greeks came and opened the gates and the Greek army came in and overwhelmed the city.

So the enemies of the church have not been able to destroy the church from the outside and have adopted the scheme of getting the gates opened from within, and by the supposed friends and supporters of the church, and now we see large numbers of church members totally indifferent to the calls of Christ and they do nothing to promote the Lord's work, but are as much dead weight and hinder the progress of the church of God. Then we see the unbelieving preachers casting doubt on the Scriptures, the deity of Christ and his bodily resurrection, and deny the existence of a future hell. There is the real danger confronting Christianity today and we are in more danger from this than from the Tom Paines and Ingersolls on the outside.

Last year there were 100,000 accidental deaths in the United States and 25,000 of these were killed by that great American juggernaut, the Automobile, and the majority of these were caused by reckless or drunken drivers. It is no longer safe to ride upon our expensive highways, as death constantly rides there. In 18 months, as many people are killed on our highways as Americans killed in the World War, and since 1918 over 100,000 of our people have been killed by these careless and intoxicated drivers. The pity is that but little is done to prevent this slaughter and the guilty parties are seldom punished. Why carry war when we are allowing this fearful wreckage of human bodies and lives to go unchecked?

We are great travelers, and during this year we will travel over six hundred million miles on the earth going around the sun, but on next December 21 we will arrive safely without accident and on schedule time. The hand of God directs the earth in its course around the sun and no drunk or reckless driver is in control. There will be no world wreckage and no human bodies buried from this planet.

Two Strong County Teams to Play Here

Columbus and Guernsey to Meet at Armory on Wednesday Night

Basketball fans are assured one of the best games of the season Wednesday night, when the Columbus boys will have for their opponents the Guernsey High School team.

Both of these teams have splendid reputations.

Last week Columbus was defeated by a team from Patmos, this was the first beating Columbus has taken this season. Early in the season Guernsey defeated Patmos, therefore fans who have followed the game are predicting that the game Wednesday night be worth seeing.

The Columbus and Guernsey schools are located within a few miles of each other and each is confident of victory. Hugh Bristol is coach of the Columbus team and Horace Kennedy is in charge of the Guernsey quintet.

The game will be played at the National Guard Armory in Hope and will begin at 7:30 p. m.

all the brain we have in these days of competition and so should see that it is not injured in any way and the truly wise person will abstain from all intoxicating drinks and thus preserve all the faculties and powers of his mind.
